Power packs are all the rage at the moment as people look for ways to keep their tech turned on when they are out on adventures, and in the Tex-Flex 3, we have another interesting addition to the mix. As the name suggests, the battery is massively flexible so you can slide it into whatever space you have. You can generally power up an action camera or smartphone at least once on one charge so it is ideally suited to micro adventures. It's seriously tough too, meaning you can submerge it up to one metre or take it into temperatures as low as -20C and it shouldn't let you down. Weighing in at just over 100g it's ridiculously light and we'd have no problem carrying it in a pocket. RS

LIFEVENTURE ULTRALIGHT DRY BAG MULTIPACK £33.99

www.lifetimeventure.com

These dry bags from Lifetimeventure really take the worry out of your stuff getting wet in your rucksack or luggage, and having three different sizes in the multi pack to choose from (5L, 10L and 25L) is seriously handy, as you're covered for a whole range of different sized items. The fabric has a siliconised coating on the outside and a PU coating on the inside which, along with fully taped seams, ensures your things will stay perfectly dry. The bags are super lightweight too, so there's no need to worry about them weighing you down. Once your kit is in, just roll the top of the bag over three times, close the buckle, and you're good to go! ND
